

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE EASTERN DISTRICT OF VIRGINIA
Richmond Division

ERIC LEE PROSHA,

Plaintiff,

v.

Civil Action No. 3:22cv183

LT. COLEMAN, et al.,

Defendants.

MEMORANDUM OPINION

Eric Lee Prosha, a Virginia inmate proceeding pro se, filed this 42 U.S.C. § 1983 action.¹ The action proceeds on Prosha's Complaint. (ECF No. 1.) As pertinent here, Prosha contends that Lt. Coleman repeatedly denied Prosha's request for a bottom bunk. (ECF No. 1-2, at 2.) Thereafter, on June 4, 2021, Prosha fell when climbing down from his top bunk when his foot gave out. (ECF No. 1-2, at 2.) Prosha contends that Lt. Coleman's actions amounted to deliberate indifference in violation of the Eighth Amendment.² (ECF No. 1, at 4.) Lt. Coleman has moved for summary judgement on the grounds that, inter alia, Prosha failed to exhaust his administrative remedies. Lt. Coleman provided Prosha with appropriate *Roseboro*³ notice, but

Prosha has not responded. For the reasons set forth below, the Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 21) will be GRANTED.⁴

I. Summary Judgment Standard

Summary judgment must be rendered “if the movant shows that there is no genuine dispute as to any material fact and the movant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(a). The party seeking summary judgment bears the responsibility to inform the court of the basis for the motion, and to identify the parts of the record which demonstrate the absence of a genuine issue of material fact. See Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, 477 U.S. 317, 323 (1986). “[W]here the nonmoving party will bear the burden of proof at trial on a dispositive issue, a summary judgment motion may properly be made in reliance solely on the pleadings, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file.” Id. at 324 (internal quotation marks omitted). When the motion is properly supported, the nonmoving party must go beyond the pleadings and, by citing affidavits or “depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file,” designate ‘specific facts showing that there is a genuine issue for trial.’ Id. (quoting former Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c) and 56(e) (1986)).

In reviewing a summary judgment motion, the court “must draw all justifiable inferences in favor of the nonmoving party.” United States v. Carolina Transformer Co., 978 F.2d 832, 835 (4th Cir. 1992) (citing Anderson v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., 477 U.S. 242, 255 (1986)). However, a mere scintilla of evidence will not preclude summary judgment. Anderson, 477 U.S. at 251 (citing Improvement Co. v. Munson, 81 U.S. 442, 448 (1872)). “[T]here is a preliminary question for the judge, not whether there is literally no evidence, but whether there is any upon which a jury could properly proceed to find a verdict for the party . . . upon whom the onus of proof is imposed.” Id. (quoting Munson, 81 U.S. at 448). Additionally, “Rule 56 does not impose upon the district court a duty to sift through the record in search of evidence to support a party’s opposition to summary judgment.” Forsyth v. Barr, 19 F.3d 1527, 1537 (5th Cir. 1994) (quoting Skotak v. Tenneco Resins, Inc., 953 F.2d 909, 915 n.7 (5th Cir. 1992)); see Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c)(3) (“The court need consider only the cited materials . . .”).

Lt. Coleman asks the Court to dismiss Prosha’s claim against him because Prosha failed to exhaust his administrative remedies as required by 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(a). Because the exhaustion of administrative remedies is an affirmative defense, Lt. Coleman bears the burden of pleading and proving lack of exhaustion. Jones v. Bock, 549 U.S. 199, 216 (2007). As pertinent here, Lt. Coleman submitted: (1) the affidavit of E. Witt, the Institutional Ombudsman at Greenville Correctional Center (“GCC”), (ECF No. 22-1, at 1–6); (2) a copy of Operating Procedure 866.1–Offender Grievance Procedure, (“Operating Procedure 866.1,” ECF No. 22-1, at 7–22); and, (3) a copy of Prosha’s grievance related documents, (ECF No. 22-1, at 23–55).

Prosha swore to the contents of his Complaint under penalty of perjury. (ECF No. 1, at 6.) Prosha attached to his Complaint some of his grievance material related to his claims. (ECF No. 1-3.)

Additionally, by Memorandum Order entered on July 26, 2023, the Court directed Lt. Coleman to provide the Court with copies of the prison staff’s responses to Prosha’s Written Complaints with fourteen (14) days of the date of entry thereof. (ECF No. 30.) The Court directed Prosha to provide any further response to those submissions within twenty-four (24) days of the date of entry thereof. Lt. Coleman filed his response on August 9, 2023. (ECF No. 31.) Prosha has not filed a further response.

In light of the foregoing principles and submissions, the following facts are established for the purposes of the pending Motion for Summary Judgment. All permissible inferences are drawn in favor of Prosha.

II. Relevant Facts

A. Prosha's Injury

On June 4, 2021, Prosha fell while exiting his top bunk. (ECF No. 1 ¶ 7.) Lt. Coleman previously had refused Prosha's request for a bottom bunk pass. (ECF No. 1-2 ¶ 4.)

B. Grievance Procedure at the Virginia Department of Corrections ("VDOC")

Operating Procedure § 866.1 requires that, before submitting a Regular Grievance, the inmate must demonstrate that he or she attempted to resolve the issue through the informal complaint process. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 10.) "The first step in in the informal complaint process is for the offender to discuss their issue with staff for a quick resolution." (ECF No. 22-1, at 10.) If the issue is not resolved verbally, the offender should submit a Written Complaint. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 10.) Prison staff have fifteen days from receipt of the Written Complaint to provide an appropriate written response. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 11.) The Written Complaint provides a space for prison staff to detail the "Action Taken/Response" to the offender's complaint. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 25.) "If the issue on the Written Complaint is not resolved to the satisfaction of the offender, or staff fail to provide a written response within 15 days, the offender may file a Regular Grievance The Regular Grievance must be placed in the Grievance Mailbox within 30 days of the original incident unless a more restrictive timeframe applies." (ECF No. 22-1, at 10.)

Certain supporting documents must be filed with the Regular Grievance, including the Written Complaint. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 14.) The issue on the Regular Grievance, must “[a]ffect the offender personally [and] [b]e identical to and limited to the issue submitted on the Written Complaint.” (ECF No. 22-1, at 13.) The Regular Grievance form requires the offender to attach the “Results of the Informal Complaint Process.” (See ECF No. 22-1, at 35.)⁵

1. Grievance Intake Procedure

Prior to review of the substance of a grievance, prison officials conduct an “intake” review of the grievance to assure that it meets the published criteria for acceptance. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 14.) For example, as pertinent here, the offender must attach a copy of the Written Complaint, with, if action was taken, the prison staff’s response to the Regular Grievance. (ECF No. 22-1, at 23–24.)⁶ “If the Regular Grievance does not meet the intake criteria, staff has two working days from receipt to complete the Intake section of the Regular Grievance [form], indicating the reason for rejection, and to return the Regular Grievance to the offender.” (ECF No. 22-1, at 14.) “If the offender disagrees with the intake decision, the offender has five days to appeal the decision.” (ECF No. 22-1, at 14.)

2. Grievance Review

If the grievance is accepted, within two working days, prison “staff must print and provide the Grievance Receipt to the offender as notification of acceptance.” (ECF No. 22-1, at 14.) Once the grievance is accepted for review, the Institutional Ombudsman determines the proper course of investigation. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 14–15.) “Within 30 days of issuance of ⁵ As explained below, Prosha repeatedly failed to attach the results of the informal complaint process to the Regular Grievance.

⁶ The Regular Grievance form reemphasizes that the issue on the form must be “the exact same issued addressed through the informal process.” (ECF No. 22-1, at 23.)

the Grievance Receipt, each accepted grievance must be investigated, reviewed, completed, and the Offender Grievance Response – Level I returned to the offender unless a continuance is authorized.” (ECF No. 22-1, at 16.)

3. Grievance Appeals

“The Offender Grievance Response – Level I includes a section for the offender to appeal their grievance response.” (ECF No. 22-1, at 17.) The appeal must be submitted within five days of receive the Offender Grievance Response. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 17.) Depending on the issue in the grievance, the appeal is addressed by the Director of Offender Management Services, the Health Services Director, the Superintendent for Education, the Chief of Corrections Operations, or the Regional Administrator. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 17–18.)

“The exhaustion requirement is met only when a Regular Grievance has been accepted into the grievance process and appealed without satisfactory resolution.” (ECF No. 22-1, at 18.)

C. Prosha’s Pertinent Efforts at Exhaustion with Respect to His Present Claim

In the weeks after his fall from his bunk, on various dates, Prosha filed eleven separate Written Complaints that were somewhat related to his fall from his bunk. Thereafter, all at once, on July 1, 2021, he filed eleven grievances that were somewhat related to his fall from his bunk. Although required to do so, in no instance did Prosha attach to his grievances the corresponding Written Complaint, with the prison staff’s response. Given Prosha’s disjointed attempts at exhaustion, the Court organizes his efforts by the date prison staff received his Written Complaint.

1. The First June 8, 2021 Written Complaint and Related Regular Grievance

The concern of the inmate was brought to the attention of staff members long before it became a written complaint. Inmate Prosha mentioned he was moved into a cell and was assigned the bottom bunk. Actually, this move was made at the same time he fell off his top bunk (as inmate states) and had to go to medical. So this issue was addressed by Lt. Coleman.

IV. Exhaustion Analysis

The pertinent statute provides: “No action shall be brought with respect to prison conditions under [42 U.S.C. § 1983] or any other Federal law, by a prisoner confined in any jail, prison, or other correctional facility until such administrative remedies as are available are exhausted.” 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(a). This language “naturally requires a prisoner to exhaust the grievance procedures offered, whether or not the possible responses cover the specific relief the prisoner demands.” Booth v. Churner, 532 U.S. 731, 738 (2001). Generally, in order to satisfy the exhaustion requirement, an aggrieved party must file a grievance raising the claim and pursue the grievance through all available levels of appeal, prior to bringing his or her action to court. See Woodford v. Ngo, 548 U.S. 81, 90 (2006). The Supreme Court has instructed that section 1997e(a) “requires proper exhaustion.” Id. at 93. The Supreme Court explained that “[p]roper exhaustion demands compliance with an agency’s deadlines and other critical procedural rules,” id. at 90, “so that the agency addresses the issues on the merits.” Id. (quoting Pozo v. McCaughtry, 286 F.3d 1022, 1024 (7th Cir. 2002)). The applicable prison rules “define the boundaries of proper exhaustion.” Jones v. Bock, 549 U.S. 199, 218 (2007). Exhaustion is mandatory, and courts lack discretion to waive the exhaustion requirement. Porter v. Nussle, 534 U.S. 516, 524 (2002).

Nevertheless “an administrative remedy is not considered to have been available if a prisoner, through no fault of [their] own, was prevented from availing [themselves] of it.” Moore v. Bennette, 517 F.3d 717, 725 (4th Cir. 2008) (citing Aquilar–Avellaveda v. Terrell, 478 F.3d 1223, 1225 (10th Cir. 2007); Kaba v. Stepp, 458 F.3d 678, 684 (7th Cir. 2006)). The Supreme Court has explained that an administrative remedy is considered unavailable when: (1) “it operates as a simple dead end—with officers unable or consistently unwilling to provide any relief to aggrieved inmates”; (2) it is “so opaque that it becomes, practically speaking, incapable of use”; or (3) “prison administrators thwart inmates from taking advantage of a grievance process through machination, misrepresentation, or intimidation.” Ross v. Blake, 578 U.S. 632, 643–44 (2016). The Supreme Court observed that, “[g]iven prisons’ own incentives to maintain functioning remedial processes, we expect that these circumstances will not often arise.” Id. at 643 (citing Woodford, 548 U.S., at 102).

“When an administrative process is susceptible of multiple reasonable interpretations, Congress has determined that the inmate should err on the side of exhaustion.” Id. at 644. The United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit quoted the foregoing language to conclude that, when “refiling” an initially defective grievance, “was available to [an inmate, the inmate’s] failure to exhaust is not excusable.” Haywood v. Baylor, 804 F. App’x 401, 403 (7th Cir. 2020) (citing Kaba, 458 F.3d at 684); accord Wall v. Stevens, No. 7:16–CV–00373, 2019 WL 1371858, at *4 (W.D. Va. Mar. 26, 2019), aff’d, 775 F. App’x 761 (4th Cir. 2019); see Woodford, 548 U.S. at 90 (emphasis added) (internal quotation marks omitted) (emphasizing that proper exhaustion entails “using all steps that the agency holds out”); Wilson v. Jamrog, No. 98–2281, 2000 WL 145455, at *2 (6th Cir. Feb. 1, 2000) (observing that inmate could have exhausted his claims “simply by following direction[s]”).

Prosha failed to comply with the VDOC’s procedural rules for the grievances he filed with respect to the denial of his claim about the denial of a bottom bunk. Those rules required that Prosha initially file a Written Complaint about the denial of a bottom bunk, await the staff’s response to that complaint, and then attach the Written Complaint with the prison’s staff response to the Regular Grievance. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 35 (emphasizing that the Written Complaint must contain the, “Results of the Informal Complaint Process.”) Prosha never complied with this requirement. Nor did he avail himself of the opportunity to resubmit a Regular Grievance with the results of the informal complaint process. See Nelson v. Ellis, No. 3:20CV803, 2023 WL 2226790, at *9 (E.D. Va. Feb. 24, 2023) (observing that the rejection of an offender's grievance did not render the administrative process unavailable because the offender had ample opportunity resubmit the grievance in conformance with the pertinent procedural rules (citing Haywood, 804 F. App'x at 403)).

On three occasions, the Institutional Ombudsman rejected Prosha's Regular Grievance at intake because he deemed the Regular Grievance to be a request for services. (See ECF No. 22-1, at 36, 42, 48.) A request for services requires the offender to submit a proper request for services through the proper prison channels. Rountree v. Clarke, No. 7:11CV00572, 2014 WL 4923964, at *6 (W.D. Va. Mar. 24, 2014), report and recommendation adopted in part, rejected in part sub nom. Rountree v. Clark, No. 7:11CV00572, 2014 WL 4923163 (W.D. Va. Sept. 30, 2014). "Only then, if the request for services is denied, does [the offender] have the opportunity to pursue [the] claim through the informal complaint and regular grievance process." Id. There is no evidence that Prosha ever pursued a request for services that was denied and subsequently filed a Written Complaint and a Regular Grievance. Because Prosha failed to do so, his complaint was not addressed on its merits as is required for proper exhaustion. Woodford, 548 U.S. at 90 (emphasis in original) (explaining that an inmate must use administrative remedies "properly (so that the agency addresses the issues on the merits)."). The record therefore establishes that Prosha failed to comply with 42 U.S.C. § 1997e(a) and his claim against Lt. Coleman is not properly exhausted. For this reason, the Motion for Summary Judgment will be GRANTED and the action will be DISMISSED.

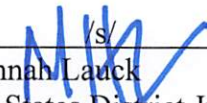

VI. Conclusion

Lt. Coleman's Motion for Summary Judgment (ECF No. 21) will be GRANTED.

Prosha's claims and the action will be DISMISSED.

An appropriate Final Order will accompany this Memorandum Opinion.
